

A Message from the Superintendent

Dear Friends,

Is the concept of family important to you? How? Do you think about it, or is it just a given? I always felt that this concept was important to our students, but I was never sure as to the level of that importance. Our students come to school, work hard, participate in many things outside the classroom, and, based on this, develop relationships and friendships. However, how important are those things to our students? Do they really make a difference in their education, or are they separate from that education?

Ron Roberts
Superintendent

Each year, I make sure to get into buildings and have conversations with students. I like to know their experiences in our schools: what is important to them, and what they think could be improved. This year, my discussions with students led me to realize the importance that family plays in the quality of their education.

At one point during the year, I had a conversation with a small group of students that had experienced a traditional education in that they mostly attended our schools for the entirety of their K-12 experience. This allowed them to establish friendships at an early age and sustain them throughout their time in Chippewa Valley. They had success in school. They were in a specialized program to meet their needs. They were all considering their college options for the upcoming year. We talked for quite some time about their teachers, their coursework, and their future. Near the end of the conversation, I asked them what made their experience special. Each student, without hesitation, offered that their school had been “like a family to them.”

In contrast to this, later in the year, I met with a group of students whose educational experience had not been so seamless. They most likely had changed schools quite often and experienced some difficulty achieving success. Although their path to graduation had not been as direct, and, just like a Michigan road, they navigated some pretty big potholes, they were going to make it and were very proud of their accomplishments. I asked them to reflect on the one major factor that contributed to their success and each student said their school had been “like a family to them.”

I think about these students and wonder what their education would have been like had the context in which it occurred been different. Can students experience success without feeling supported? Can students experience success if not surrounded by others who create a safe space? A space in which they can feel comfortable truly being his or herself: not afraid to take risks and make mistakes.

The mission statement of our district is Inspiring and empowering learners for a lifetime of success. For us to be successful and achieve our mission we must be “like a family to them.” I would argue, as an educator, this is the most important thing we do for our students. It is through this that we build resiliency in our students. This is how we help them tap their inner strengths when things don’t go as planned. This is how we prepare them for a lifetime of success.

I look forward to the 2019-2020 school year. A year in which we work together to provide an educational experience for our students which is second to none. One in which our students feel safe and empowered to become the people they wish to be. We will do this together. This is what makes me immensely proud to be the Superintendent of the Chippewa Valley family.

Sincerely,
Ron Roberts,
Superintendent
